Bataan POW relates horrors of imprisonment

EDITOR'S NOTE: To our knowledge, two natives of Hancock County were involved in the World War II battle of Bataan and Corregidor, Joseph Clay (J. C.) Baxter and W. A. (Fred) Curet. The two were detained together for a short time at Cabanatuan Slave Camp, Philippine Islands, Luzon, and later ended up in different POW camps in Japan. This is the story of J. C. Baxter as related to his brother Lionel Baxter and in recent Echo interviews.

Philippine President Marcos, who will lead the 35th anniversary celebration of this Bataan National Holiday April 9, 1980 was a Filipino prisoner at the same time as Baxter at Fort Santiago Dungeons. A story on the prison hardships of W. A. (Fred) Curet, native of Kiln, will follow. Baxter, even though he was born in Jackson, considers himself a Bay St. Louis native since he is a lifelong resident of this community.

J. C. and Lionel will make the journey to the Philippines for the celebration. Curet due to his health will be unable to do so.

Appreciation is extended to Lionel Baxter and J. C. Baxter for their courteous loan of photos, and mementos preserved over the years.

The Sea Coast Echo feels the world conditions today and the 35th Anniversary of Bataan and Corregidor should be brought to the attention of all Americans.

We MUST not let ourselves as a nation become unprepared the way we were when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor or overran the Philippine Islands.

By ELLIS CUEVAS

On April 9, 1980, the Philippine Government through the Philippine Tourist Bureau will sponsor the 38th Anniversary celebration of the fall of Bataan and Corregidor.

That celebration will also include a 35th reunion Anniversary for American service men and women, mostly POW's and families and friends.

Also, a plaque honoring women who gave so much of themselves in the early days of World War II will be dedicated.

Joseph Clay (J. C. Baxter) of Bay St. Louis, a Japanese prisoner of war for more than 3.5 years, plans on attending the celebrations accompanied by his brother Lionel Baxter, also of Bay St. Louis.

J. C. Baxter graduated from Bay High School in 1939, and then worked in a private club for awhile in Biloxi.

When asked how he ended up in the Philippines for the outbreak of World War II, he said, "I joined the Army in January, 1941 in order not to be drafted and was sent to the Philippines for basic training."

"My greatest desire in returning to the Philippines is to photograph the Spanish Dungeons of Fort Santiago," Baxter reports.

He spent more than 60 days confined in the dungeons constructed by the Spanish in the sixteenth century.

Prior to the fall of the Philippines, Baxter served with the 19th Bomber Squadron of the signal aviation corps at Nichols and Clark Fields in the islands.

He was involved in the Battle of Bataan from January 15, 1942 to the April 9 fall.

Initial Silence

Lionel Baxter states that J. C. had remained very silent about his prison tortures until recent years when he finally began to mention some of them.

J. C. Baxter himself said in an interview that dates may not be exactly correct as everything was in a big confusion and at times he could hardly think because of tortures.

Not until December 1976 did J. C. start to tell some of the stories to Lionel.

When serving in the Philippines before the war started, J. C. wrote a letter to Lionel telling him the Islands would be defeated by the Japanese if they were attacked.

The original of this letter is still retained by Lionel.

J. C. described the severe conditions in the Philippine Islands:

"...You know, Lionel (Keep this to yourself) the more I see of the 'defense' measures they are taking to protect these Islands, I actually have to laugh. I really think that if we should have War with Japan, the Japanese could blow this Island off the face of the earth with just one good 'air raid.'"

"...Lionel, don't tell this to anyone, but if we do have war, you can depend on this Island to be blown slap to 'hell.' Of course I can see where 'Uncle Sam' is trying to protect his interests here."

Moved to Japan

When captured by the Japanese, Baxter said he weighed about 186 pounds and upon his release from Nigata, Rincio Prison, on the northern tip of Honshu, Japan, 3.5 years later he weighed only 80 pounds.

"At Nigata prison we heard rumors that the Japanese had been defeated and we were far away from most civilization."

THE REALITIES OF WAR-This World Wide Photo, according to former World War II POW Joseph Clay (J.C.) Baxter, depicts the type of executions he witnessed as a POW at Cabanatuan Prison Camp No. Three. Baxter and his brother Lionel will attend the 35th anniversary reunion of ex-POW's and their families who served in the Philippines 1941-42 during the fall of Bataan and the Bataan Death March. J.C. Baxter participated in that march before escaping and being re-captured a month later. When captured, J.C. Baxter weighed more than 180 pounds and when he was liberated by the Americans some 3.5 years later his weight was below 80 pounds. He graduated from Bay High School in 1939 and joined the Army in early 1941.

Board eyes reassessment in unannounced meeting

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors conducted an "informal, informational meeting" Monday afternoon with representatives of the State Tax Commission to discuss costs and methods of ad valorem tax reassessment.

The unannounced meeting occurred at 1:30 p.m. following the regular monthly meeting of the supervisors.

Lloyd Huckaby and Ray Wingo, representatives of the Ad. Valorem Department, State Tax Commission, advised the supervisors to begin preparations to reassess the county.

Reassessment will be necessary should the State Supreme Court uphold a ruling by Hinds County Judge James Barnett which calls for reassessment of property there by 1983.

The higher court's decision is due in May, according to the tax experts.

The supervisors Monday afternoon were attempting to obtain a "ballpark figure" of what mapping and assessment field work will cost the county.

Wingo told the supervisors that hiring an outside firm to do all of the work will be expensive, but doing an in-house job may not be less expensive and could prove more troublesome.

"With an in-house job you will save a little on profit. You will not save any overhead, because you will have to hire and train people to do field work," Wingo said.

"With the need for assessors today, the new workers will probably only stay a month or two and then go to higher paying private companies," he added.

Wingo then estimated the cost of mapping the county for reappraisal would alone cost some $600,000.

Wingo told the supervisors one person can map a 20 home area per day, and with 10,480 unparcelled lots in the county, total reassessment would take 524 man days.

"With five people working on the project, it could take 100 days to map," Wingo said.

"Eliminating all ifs, ands, or buts, we all have an inclination to procrastinate, but we have a point where we are beyond procrastination. When is that for us," Board Attorney Walter Gex III asked.

"You have already passed the point of procrastination," Huckaby said.

Gex said he knows that the other 81 counties in the state have not begun reassessing, and asked what the court is going to do if all counties have not completed reassessment by 1983.

Wingo said the private mapping and REASSESSMENT-Page 6A

Sheriff cites 100 for illegal tags

By RICH ADAMS

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson said Wednesday his department has issued in excess of 100 citations to automobile owners with expired or out-of-state license tags.

The large number of citations are a result of a massive roadblock operation in the county which Peterson began some two weeks ago.

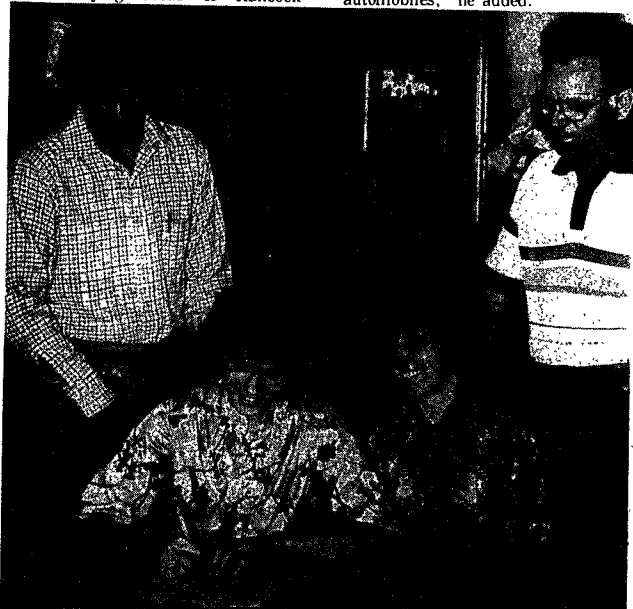

Peterson said he has set up one roadblock twice weekly in Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Pearlinton, Lakeshore, Clermont Harbor, Kiln, and other outlying areas of Hancock County.

He said the operations will continue until summer, adding another roadblock is scheduled today "at an undisclosed location."

"So far we have had success and have issued more than 100 tickets," Peterson said Wednesday.

"We have ticketed many drivers for out-of-state tags, which is the primary purpose of the roadblocks," he continued.

"I believe this operation has forced a lot of drivers to get proper tags on their automobiles," he added.

Florida land sale-vacation offer under fire from consumer groups

By RICH ADAMS

A land sales scheme which has enticed two Hancock County families into obligating money for "an exciting 5-day and 4-night Vacation in fabulous Florida" is the subject of an alert in a nationwide consumer magazine.

The February 1980 edition of 'Consumer Reports' contains an article explaining the operation of Lehigh Corporation of Ft. Meyers, Florida and National Travel Incorporated of Sparta, Tennessee, which offer the vacations.

The Nashville, Tennessee Better

Business Bureau also has a report on Lehigh, National Travel, a subsidiary called Worldwide Travel, and Charles and Robert Payne, primary officers of Lehigh Corp.

In the alert, the magazine outlines steps its staff took in contacting National Travel and Lehigh to uncover the land sales motives behind it.

Six homes, old library featured on Pass tour

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Ladies Altar Society of St. Paul's Catholic Church in Pass Christian will sponsor its first annual Spring Tour of Homes from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The tour will include six homes, the Old Town Library, lunch, and a 3 p.m. tea.

The tour begins at 10 a.m. with open house at 'The Red Barn,' home of Mr. and Mrs. Harriman Morgan at 108 Cedar Avenue.

The 1926 vintage structure was part of the former estate of 'La Consita' which was destroyed by Hurricane Camille.

The Morgan's purchased the barn in 1975 and transformed it into a home decorated with antiques.

Also, the morning tour will include the Old Town Library, founded February 21, 1893 by Isabella Bowman Finley and is still in operation.

The library register lists President Woodrow Wilson, who lived in the famous Pass Christian Dixie-White House also destroyed by Hurricane Camille, among many other famous signatures.

Many autographed first edition books are also housed in the old library. Following a noon lunch at St. Paul's Cafeteria will be a tour of the 603 East Scenic Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Young Jr.

The original portion of the Young home was constructed in the late 1800's and represents construction techniques of that era.

The beach front home of Mrs. Clifton B. Kennedy, 1213 East Beach, is a 1926 award winning home designed by the New Orleans architectural firm F. Monroe Labouisse.

vacation offers. The CU article stated: "IMPORTANT NOTICE," the postcard screamed. "This is to inform you that your entry was received at the participating CONTEST CLEARING HOUSE entitling you to receive an exciting 5-day and 4-night vacation in fabulous Florida." A telephone number was appended for complete information, "the magazine alert reads."

"Problems? Well, for one thing, the CU readers who received the postcard had never sent in any entry to National Travel Inc., the outfit that mailed it. And for another, the phone number that recipients are invited to call is in Sparta, Tenn., a long-distance call for anybody not in the immediate area," the article continues.

"Piqued by the latter detail, 'Selling It' (the Consumer Reports section in which the article is contained) gave National Travel a buzz-collect. Not surprisingly, National wouldn't accept the charge. They were pleased to talk to us on our own time, however ($3.49 plus tax for a four-minute call from CU's Mount Vernon, N.Y. office)," the report reads.

"As things turned out, recipients had won 'free' room accommodations in any of four Florida locations plus 'valuable discount coupons,' according to National Travel's representative. 'Food, transportation, local taxes, etc. are not included.' Not included either is a $42.50 'certificate fee,' nor a daily surcharge of $7.50 per person for reservations for the period from Feb. 1 to April 18," the alert continues.

"And there may be a further catch to all the largesse: the postcard notes that National Travel is a 'certificate distributor for Lehigh Corporation.' And a flyer you receive if you call National Travel notes that 'while on your vacation you will be invited to an interesting land sales presentation,' the magazine article concludes.

A report of the experiences of a Shoreline Park couple who were 'misled' into paying $49.50 to National Travel and Lehigh Corporation appeared in the March 13 edition of the Sea Coast Echo.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sloane of Shoreline Park were scheduled to see an attorney from the South Mississippi Legal Services Wednesday afternoon to explore the possibility of receiving the $49.50 they authorized National Travel to charge to their credit card account before they realized they were not eligible for the trip because they are beyond the age limitations of the offer.

Another county resident, Mrs. Rhonda Oliver of Bay St. Louis, paid $42.50 after she received the postcard from National Travel.

But through fast work by her credit card company, she was refunded her money two months after she authorized the company to charge the money to her account.

Mrs. Oliver said she received the postcard in July of 1979 and contacted National Travel within the 10 day deadline listed on the card.

"I almost got took. I got the post card in the mail and called National Travel," Mrs. Oliver said Tuesday.

"When I called the number in Tennessee, this lady gave me a big sales pitch about a great vacation plan. I asked if the offer had anything to do with land sales and she said no. She lied to me on the phone," the Bay St. Louis resident continued.

"I gave the lady my Visa charge card number, and afterwards thought about the possibility the whole thing was a scam," Mrs. Oliver said.

She called the Better Business Bureau in Nashville, Tennessee, which told her a report is on file concerning the parties involved in the land sale scheme.

A spokesman for the BBB in Nashville said Wednesday Lehigh, National Travel, Worldwide Vacations, and the Payne brothers have been involved in two court cases, one in Connecticut and another in Wisconsin.

"Lehigh was the subject of an inquiry by the Consumer Protection Agency in Connecticut," the spokesman read from a report.

"Lehigh Corporation, Charles C. Payne, Robert Payne, and National Travel Incorporated, which serves as a representative to solicit for Lehigh, entered into a consent agreement with the state of Connecticut in August 1979. The companies agreed not to indicate the recipient of the postcard is a winner of a contest, because, in fact, the recipient never entered a contest," the BBB spokesman said.

"In complying with the consent agreement the companies admitted no guilt or unlawful actions," she continued.

"On January 23, 1980, a suit was filed in Dade County Circuit Court in Wisconsin against National Travel Incorporated, Lehigh Corporation, Worldwide Vacations, and the Payne brothers. The suit alleges the firms engage in false advertising and also alleges the firms unlawfully receive credit card numbers for 'informational purposes' and charge sums of money against 'the owners' accounts," the spokesman said Tuesday.

The suit asks for damages and retribution, and was filed by the Consumer Protection Agency in cooperation with the Connecticut Commissioner of Banking, the spokesman added.

Tuesday Mrs. Oliver said she had called Visa's main office and asked the official there to stop payment on the $42.50 she had authorized National Travel to charge against her account.

The Visa official told Mrs. Oliver the chances of getting the charge stopped was unlikely, but instructed her to make copies of all documents received from Lehigh and National Travel.

"Within ten days I received my vacation certificate from the travel company, and called them immediately and requested a refund. The girl at National Travel said I could get no refund," Mrs. Oliver said.

"After two months of attempts I finally received a credit slip from Visa for $42.50," Mrs. Oliver said.

Mrs. Oliver and her family then decided to travel to Florida in February of this year, and while there received two telephone calls from Lehigh representatives while she was lodging in a Days Inn Motel near Orlando.

"I received a call while in my motel room at 10 p.m. We were tired, and I asked the lady to call back the following day," Mrs. Oliver said.

"The next day they called in the early evening, and offered a land tour. I asked the name of the company, and when the hostess said Lehigh, I wanted no part of it," she continued.

"I don't know how the company got my name. They called some friends of ours who were in Florida this month also," she added.

James McClain, manager of the Orlando Days Inn Number Nine at which the Oliviers stayed during their vacation, said Tuesday "all motels in the Orlando area allow Lehigh to examine registration books and call lodgers and offer the land sales tours."

McClain said taking names from motel registers "is legal in the state of Florida," adding a notice is posted in the lobby of all motels notifying lodgers that a representative will call their room and offer a tour.

"All the Days Inns, Holiday Inns, Hiltons, and other motels here allow Lehigh to examine the registration books," McClain said Tuesday.

"We are in no contract with the company and receive no money for this service," he continued.

"This is just an agreement between Lehigh and the motels. Lehigh is registered with the state of Florida to do this," he added.

Don North, a public affairs officer with the Florida Attorney General in Tallahassee said Wednesday his office has received no complaints about Lehigh or National Travel.

He added there is no law against private industries "buying registration lists" from motels.

County jobless

figures below state,

U.S. rate

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Hancock County's unemployment rate dropped from 6.7 percent in December to 6.5 percent at the end of January, according to recent Mississippi State Employment Service figures.

The local figures are lower than state and national figures which reached 6.8 percent during the same January period. Employment figures show the 5.8 percent national January unemployment rate reflected a 1.2 percent increase from December.

Based on place of residence the January civilian labor force in Hancock County increased 6,820 persons as compared with 6,780 people available in December and 6,630 civilians available January 1979.

The number of employed persons increased from 6,310 in December to 6,380 at the end of January.

Based on place of work county figures also show 1,050 persons employed in manufacturing jobs as compared to 950 manufacturing employees reported in December.

Nonmanufacturing employment figures based on place of work show 6,450 persons in January which dropped from 6,500 persons in December.

Employment service figures indicate the counties having the highest rate of unemployment were Jefferson with a rate of 17.5, Sharkey with a rate of 16.7 and Tunica with a rate of 13.2.

Lafayette, Oktibbeha and Rankin had the lowest rate of unemployed people in the state with Lafayette reporting a 3.7 rate, Oktibbeha had a rate of 3.6 and Rankin had a rate of 2.6.

Some 66 Mississippi counties showed an increase in the unemployment rate for January, five counties maintained the same rate and 11 counties showed a decreased rate.

VA News

Q-I am a World War II veteran and am now 65 years of age. Do I automatically qualify for a Veterans Administration pension?

A-No. You meet the age and wartime service requirements. However, you must also meet the income and net worth requirement. For a veteran without dependents, the annual income limit is $3,902.

Q-When I visit or call the Veterans Administration to inquire about my benefits it seems that my number is more important than my name. Why?

A-Your claim number or social security number permits the VA to identify your records more quickly and determine what benefits you are entitled to. Your name is important. But consider the fact that there are more than 30 million names in the VA records system. Many are identical. There are no duplicate social security or claim numbers.

Q-I was injured in World War II service but have never filed a claim. Is it too late to do so now?

A-No. There is no time limit for filing a claim for compensation. Contact your nearest Veterans Administration office.

Leetown shotgun

self-inflicted

By RICH ADAMS

A Leetown man found dead in the bathroom of his home Wednesday morning is apparently the victim of self-inflicted shotgun wounds, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson.

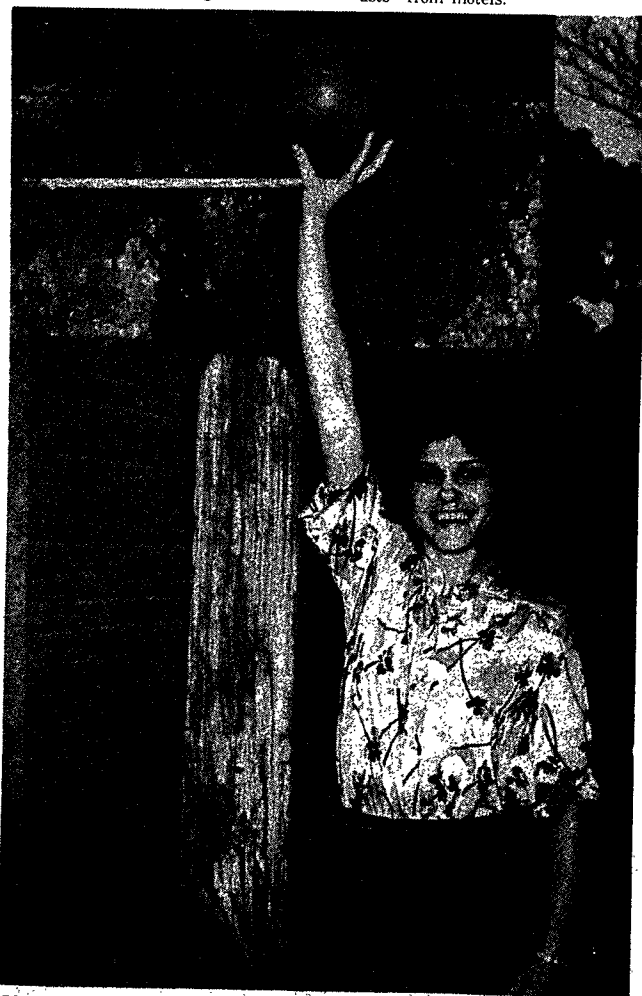

Peterson said his office received a telephone call about 5 a.m. Wednesday morning from Melvin Brown of Leetown, who said Mrs. Clinton O. Whaley, also of Leetown, had called him to say her husband had shot himself.

Captain Paul Bernard, head of the sheriff's department night shift, and Deputies Glenn Strong, Clinton Dedeaux, and Steve Landry, arrived on the scene and found the body of Clinton O. Whaley, 52, in the bathroom of his home, the sheriff reported.

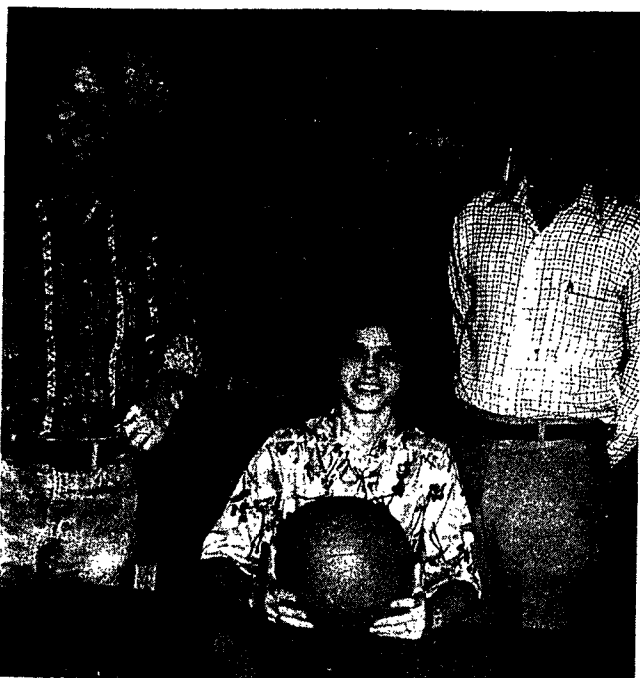

Whaley had apparently shot himself in the stomach with a .410 gauge shotgun and was pronounced dead on the scene, Peterson said.

Hancock County Coroner Carl Banderet and a coroner's jury at the scene determined the wounds were self-inflicted, the sheriff added.

Highway 603, a death trap!

It is a shame the number of people who have been killed in accidents on highway 603 in Hancock County.

We realize some accidents will happen no matter what type highway we have, but we feel there are some things which could be done to lessen dangerous conditions on this particular roadway.

Over the weekend we noticed the lack of a white line on the side of Hwy. 603 north of the Hwy. 43 intersection at Cuevas Junction.

We are in a part of the country where very frequent fogs move in and it makes it very hard to stay on the road and a white line on the side of the highway is a big help under those conditions.

As a matter of fact, we also failed to see a visible white line on either side of Hwy. 43 although many years ago there was one.

Little things like more warning signs similar to the ones installed on US-90 at Henderson Point could be help.

The Mississippi Highway Patrol cracked down on speeders on Hwy. 603 last year, and rightfully they did the job which was needed.

The State Highway Department is now reworking the very low shoulders south of I-10 on Hwy. 603, but we have been told by folks involved in law enforcement they are now worse than ever. Recently we were told of two vehicles hitting the soft shoulders and running into a ditch on the same day.

The Highway Patrol, sheriff's department and any other law enforcement agencies cannot, and we repeat, cannot eliminate accidents.

We, the users of the highway, are the only ones who can really help and that is by driving at a reasonable speed, not over the limit, and driving defensively.

Hwy. 603 will remain a death trap until we observe the speed limits and something is done to improve the conditions of the road.

We seriously hope Hwy. 43 is also updated, as it has had a serious death rate as well as Hwy. 603.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL - THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Mississippi Economic Council has called for a lay state board of education as an essential step in the improvement of the state's public school system.

The appeal came in testimony before the Senate Education Committee which is considering legislation providing for the establishment of an expanded lay board.

MEC President Benton Cain, a Jackson businessman, told lawmakers that Mississippi and Florida are the only two states which have ex officio state boards of education.

Mississippi's education board consists of the Secretary of State, Attorney General, and State Superintendent of Education, who serves as chairman. Cain questioned the ex officio board's ability to administer a public education system which now involves more than a half million children, has expenses of almost $665 million, and which is expected to continue to grow.

Citing examples, Cain said that the minutes of the regular monthly board meetings from 1972 to 1979 indicate the board normally handles only routine day-to-day operations with little attention given to policy making, day-to-day operations with little attention given to policy making, long-range planning, or measuring results.

Cain said such problems as uniform financial and administrative procedures, revision of the Minimum Foundation Program for more adequate financing, and policy direction to the state's vocational-technical training programs apparently have been given little attention by the board. "We believe that a lay state board of education should be able to recognize problems of the nature outlined and take appropriate action," said Cain.

"And, membership on the board should be by appointment rather than by election," he added.

He told lawmakers the question of appointment has been answered in a survey of members of local school boards in the state in which the majority said they would not be candidates in district or statewide elections but would serve if appointed.

Battery jumping dangers cited by blindness group

What do you do on a cold, damp morning when your car won't start? If you are like most people, you call a friend, neighbor, or service station attendant to jump-start your battery. No problem right? Wrong! Many hundreds of Americans including three Hancock County residents we have heard of recently, have suffered severe eye injury or other traumatic bodily injury in jump-starting accidents caused by not knowing how to properly jump-start an automobile.

There is a very specific way of connecting cables to the batteries of both cars involved in a jump-start. Many people who did not know the proper methods of jump-starting a car have been blinded by exploding batteries.

The Mississippi Society of Prevent Blindness wants to make sure that you will know how to properly jump-start a car should you ever need to know how. For just one quarter of a dollar, the MSPB will send you a self-gummed stick-on giving step by step instructions for jump-starting your car.

Attached securely under the hood near your battery, this instruction sticker will give you the correct information when you need it most.

Send your quarter and request to Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness, 115 Broadmoor Drive, Jackson, 39206.

A self-addressed stamped envelope would expedite your request and help the MSPB free postage funds for other activities to prevent blindness.

NEW TYPE OF AIRCRAFT CARRIER NEEDED

The U.S. aircraft carrier fleet is one of the strongest components of our national defense. These "floating airfields" can be shifted to any part of the world where trouble appears likely. Their awesome presence in any area, along with their escort ships sends a strong signal that the United States is there and ready to use force if necessary. U.S. aircraft carriers serve as a great deterrent to serious trouble.

Recent developments in the Persian Gulf area have highlighted the need for more Navy ships - including aircraft carriers. Assignment of U.S. ships to the Indian Ocean at the expense of other important areas of the world has shown us clearly that the limited number of ships we now have in our naval forces is stretched thin. We should begin now to augment our fleet of 12 large-deck carriers with a new type of smaller aircraft carrier. Modern technology should be used to design a smaller carrier and a new type of aircraft which can be effectively used on the smaller carrier.

Naturally, these smaller carriers would not be able to do everything a large carrier can, but by using available technology, the Navy should be able to build a highly capable ship that would be more powerful than the current Russian aircraft carriers.

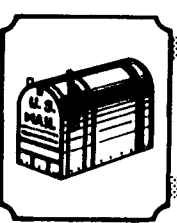

The aircraft carrier with its highly capable aircraft and supporting ships comprises the single most powerful and flexible force on the sea today. These new smaller carriers could extend that force by operating in tandem with the larger carriers in highly dangerous areas or could operate independently as required by the situation.

"We should give development of a smaller type of aircraft carrier a high priority as we plan for the future defense needs of our country."

Dog fighters promised

unexpected exposure

March 14, 1980
Bay St. Louis
To The Editor,
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

I want to express my deep appreciation to the Sea Coast Echo for its expression about the cruel dog fighters and its title on the Editorial page, "Beware of the dog fighters," which brought to mind the Lou Grant show on TV last week on CBS.

The show was quite interesting-it gave a clear exposure to these inhumane, bloody dog fights.

Dog fighters steal people's pets to put them up against Pit Bulls, and the Pit Bulls, nearly always end up killing the stolen pet.

The only enjoyable part of the picture was when the police made a surprise raid-the villains were all taken to jail and fined.

Now, I also read about the incident in Harrison County and I plan to write Sheriff Hobbs. We need more like him.

We have a fine law officer here too in Ronnie Peterson.

The following statement was heard through the "grape vine" we can't be absolutely certain of the truth, however it came up in conversation, when a listener remarked, "there were no such goings on in Hancock County until we heard of Rocky Hill."

It's hard to believe, because there are some gentle lovable people, in Rocky Hill; I almost decided making my home there, some ten years ago.

People who are guilty of such nefarious crimes such as dog fights can be sure, they will be exposed when they least expect it.

Very sincerely,
Eleanor E. McFie

Washington Report

By REP. TRENT LOTT
5th District, Mississippi

Even as President Carter tries his hand at balancing his budget on paper, a sense of crisis is taking hold in the country with inflation and interest rates soaring past 18 percent. The American people are rightly worried about the potential for economic disaster caused to a large extent by excessive federal spending.

Balancing the budget is a great idea, one which should have become a reality long ago, and could very well carry a positive psychological impact.

But President Carter and his groggy economic advisers have already underestimated this year's budget deficit by 8 billion.

My concern is that what he proposed may be too little, too late, and may come in areas such as national defense where budget cuts would not be helpful. There is a real danger that he will propose not the five percent real growth in defense spending he called for in January, but an increase more along the lines of 1.5 percent.

One major failing has been too much general talk about budget cuts and not enough about the specifics of where to make them. Several Members of Congress from both political parties have developed a specific, sensible plan to knock more than $26.3 billion from the budget.

After careful research, we have found ways to cut the budget through program reductions, selective cuts within functional accounts and halting excessive departmental overhead expenses.

Let's be specific about this initiative to save $26.3 billion. Let's start with counter-cyclical aid, a misguided program that gives money to big cities under a questionable formula, and knock out a whopping $1 billion.

Follow that with eliminating duplication in the food stamp program, saving more than $1.1 billion, and cutting off the school lunch subsidies from high income families, saving $300 million. You begin to see the potential of this plan.

But more can be done. Foreign aid could be slashed by more than $1 billion, still leaving at least 17 billion in the program. An estimated $400 million could be saved by junking the subsidy the Postal Services gets to cope with junk mail.

Then, let's consider the $2.3 billion saving that would result from a freeze on federal hiring, the $1.6 billion saving in equipment and the $859 million saving by keeping federal bureaucrats closer to home instead of traveling excessively across the country.

These eight specific areas I have mentioned represent budget reductions of more than $8.7 billion, without jeopardizing our ability to defend ourselves and strategic interests around the globe. And, our plan targets 18 other areas where cuts can be made swiftly.

Cutting federal spending in practice and not just on paper is the very least that must be done. The American people also need sizeable tax cuts to encourage production and savings, and I hope Congress acts on such a measure soon.

Let's Apply Free Enterprise to the Truckers

By David Cohen

Congressional committees have started hearings on legislation which could save American consumers $5 billion a year by removing some of the complex web of regulations governing interstate trucking. With inflation raging, cost-saving measures should sail through Congress. But not with the powerful trucking industry and the Teamsters Union fighting to keep their advantages in place.

The Motor Carrier Act of 1935 protected the fragmented trucking industry during the Depression. Since then the trucking industry has prospered but the 1935 law is still on the books and hasn't been seriously studied since its adoption. As a result of that law the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) today tells trucking companies exactly what routes they may travel, what cities they may serve, what goods they may carry, and what rates they may charge.

The minutiae of ICC regulations have produced their own set of absurdities:

- authority for a trucker to carry empty ginger ale bottles, but not full bottles, or empty coke or root beer bottles.
- authority for some truckers to carry instant chicken noodle soup, but not onion or bean soup.

The ICC's route restrictions are so arbitrary that companies often cannot take direct routes between cities but must go round-about, adding mileage costs and wasting fuel, and driving up prices for consumers. One White House aide said, "It's like telling an airline, you can go from here (Washington, D.C.) to Boston but you can only take females who are between 60 and 65; you have to go by way of Cleveland, and you can't touch down your wheels there; you can't let anybody off or take anybody on."

Trucking regulation has outlived its usefulness. Prices are inflated because competition is blocked. Trucking companies are free to engage in legalized price fixing. Fuel is needlessly wasted and discriminatory pricing practices abound.

David Cohen is President of Common Cause, a nonpartisan citizens' lobby.

The costs to consumers of this needless regulation are real. Regulatory practices reportedly waste 500 million gallons of fuel a year. Empty truck mileage alone may cost consumers an additional one cent per package of food and 37 cents for each pair of shoes.

Don't be fooled if these figures sound penny ante. The overall cost of antiquated trucking practices is high - an estimated $5 billion a year.

So why haven't we abandoned the 1930's trucking regulation? It's because over the years one of the strongest special interest groups has blossomed under the protective hand of regulation. Drivers and trucking companies, represented by the powerful Teamsters Union and the American Trucking Association, which together contributed $769,899 in 1976 and 1978 to congressional candidates, pressure Congress to keep their benefits coming.

However, momentum is building in Congress to apply free enterprise to the trucking industry. Consumers, farmers, and business people are fighting for deregulating the trucking industry and forcing it to compete. Last summer the Carter administration and Senator Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) joined forces and introduced far-reaching trucking deregulation legislation. Key committee chairmen have committed themselves to send a bill to the President by June 1. The question is whether Congress will pass a bill that deregulates the trucking industry or will just enact a sham bill.

It will be a bruising fight. However, Congress has the opportunity to reduce inflation, save energy, cut government red tape and in the process save American consumers some money - all in one piece of legislation. It's an opportunity our lawmakers should embrace.

Trial Lawyers advocate end to Justice courts

The state's Justice Courts are outdated and should be replaced by a magistrate system using more qualified judges, according to the Mississippi Trial Lawyers Association.

James Ramsey, president of MTLA said Monday that the Association's Board of Governors, representing some 900 trial lawyers throughout Mississippi, voted Saturday to "Urge the abolition of the Justice Courts in Mississippi in favor of a magistrate system using attorney-judges."

Furthermore, the Board's resolution called for the legislature to submit a Constitutional amendment, abolishing the Justice Court System, to the voters for their consideration.

A special committee for the Mississippi Trial Lawyers Association began studying the issue of upgrading Mississippi's lower court system in December, 1979.

The committee reported to the MTLA Board of Governors last Saturday, at which time the Board made it's recommendation to abolish the Justice Courts and replace them with a more efficient magistrate system.

Physical therapist's contributions praised

Health Care With A Personal Touch is theme of Physical Therapy Week proclaimed in Mississippi this week by Gov. William Winter.

Physical therapy is a direct form of professional patient care and a vital part of total health care for patients who have temporary or permanent disability or pain due to injury, disease, birth defect or loss of limb.

According to Karine Carpenter of Waveland, graduate of the University of Long Beach, Calif. and physical therapist at Hancock General Hospital, physical therapy places emphasis on the quality of life of the patient, and it focuses particularly on preventing disability and returning the disabled to a more active, productive lifestyle.

Physical therapists evaluate, plan and administer physical therapy treatment programs for patients that have been referred to them by a physician.

The physical therapist's goals are to restore function, relieve pain and prevent disability. These are achieved by treatment programs that exclude exercises to increase strength, endurance and coordination and to improve joint motion; by application of physical agents such as heat, cold, sound and electricity.

The physical therapist also acts as an instructor and motivator for the patient, his family and others who might help with his treatment and convalescent period, she explained.

There are more than 32,000 physical therapists in the United States who work in health care settings such as hospitals, schools, private offices, rehabilitation centers, and nursing homes.

The demand for these services is growing in public and non-public schools, health maintenance organizations, industry, research centers, and a variety of settings where sports-related injuries occur.

There are over 125 registered physical therapists in Mississippi, Ms. Carpenter said.

The practice of physical therapy is regulated by licensure in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and practitioners are graduates of a four-year college curriculum, she added.

Turkey season opens Saturday

Mississippi turkey hunters will have their day in the woods soon, when the state's spring gobbler season opens March 22.

Turkey hunting this year will be open in over 70 counties and on most of the state's public wildlife management areas. The first hunting period will end April 2, reopen April 4 and last through April 27.

Hunters took some 11,620 birds last year, according to department of Wildlife Conservation officials. The harvest this year is expected to exceed 12,000.

Each year over 35,000 persons in the state go turkey hunting. To be legal shooters must have a valid state hunting license.

Agency law enforcement officials say that hunters should also be familiar with what areas are open and closed. For anyone using a shotgun, they say, it must be plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells.

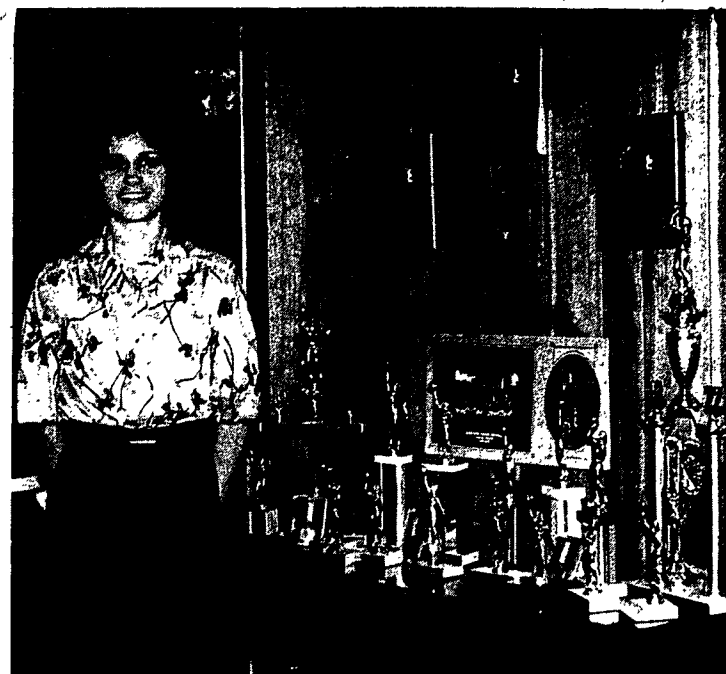

They advise that Commission regulations prohibit hunting turkeys over bait and or with dogs, live decoys, or electrically or mechanically operated calling or sound reproducing devices.

In addition, turkey hunting is also a time for hunters to be careful and sure of their target in the woods before firing their gun, agency executive director Richard Yancey cautioned.

"Turkey hunters are usually well camouflaged and occasionally someone gets shot or a hen turkey is mistakenly killed when a hunter is not completely sure of what he is shooting at," Yancey said.

Figures from the department's hunter safety division show that there were six hunting fatalities in Mississippi last year from a variety of causes.

School board ok's repairs to ailing treatment plants

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County School Board took steps to remedy problems with sewage treatment plants at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School and Hancock North Central School at a Wednesday morning recess meeting.

The board authorized bid advertisement for two new sewage treatment plant pumps at Charles B. Murphy and declared the HNC sewage treatment plant and a gas leakage at North Central an emergency.

Billy D. Sills, county school superintendent, reported, "Sonny Bailey, a local electrician, has recommended rather than repairing the pumps to go ahead and purchase two new pumps costing about $2,500."

Woodrow Ladner, county school board president, asked, "Is this in a state of emergency?"

Sills replied, "Well, if both of the pumps go out we will have to close the school. We are using just one pump to operate the system right now."

The board then voted to advertise for bids on two new pumps.

Thad Haskins, HNC principal, reported, "Monday we went out to the sewage treatment plant and found we have a very bad chlorine leak."

"We had to get the Diamondhead Fire Department to come out and turn the chlorine unit off," Haskins said.

"A state pollution man inspected the plant and said we needed a new coordinator valve and a mixer for the chlorine tank," Haskins explained.

"A new valve and mixer will cost about $75 and we have to order the equipment today to get it by next Wednesday," Haskins stated.

Haskins also reported Blossman Gas Co. had found extensive leakage from a gas line running under a sidewalk at HNC.

The board declared a gas leak and treatment plant an emergency authorizing corrective measures immediately.

In other business, during the 9 a.m. at their Court Street offices in Bay St. Louis, the board:

—Approved the resignation of Charles B. Murphy Librarian Joe Cobb due to health reasons; —Approved a resolution to participate in the State Federal Property Assistance Program. The resolution allows the school district to obtain surplus government equipment when available;

—Approved the February docket and the minutes from their last meeting;

—Approved a recommendation to employ Roger Dean Ladner as an assistant mechanic for the school district;

—Approved a motion to set the assistant mechanic's salary at $850 per month;

—Approved classifying the position held by Tommy Carver as mechanic-helper;

—Approved the local school district plan for educating exceptional children according to Public Law 94-142. The school board presents the plan to the State Department of Education each year;

—Approved a motion to go into executive session to discuss personnel matters;

—Accepted a resignation from Haskins effective June 30, 1980;

—Discussed roof leakage at HNC with Project Architect John Mykolyk of Pass Christian. Mykolyk reported their was leakage in the junior high caused by a blocked gutter; a skylight at the elementary was leaking and needed sealing; and the gymnasium was leaking because reroofing work is incomplete;

—Received a request for donations for the Gulfview Elementary School annual fair;

—Received an invitation to attend Roland Ladner Day at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum in Biloxi at 2 p.m. March 30.

Appeals Court rules against Save The Bay

The U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals this week rejected a plea from Save The Bay, Inc., Mississippi Gulf Coast environmentalist group, for a full hearing on the group's effort to prevent industrial pollution of Bay St. Louis.

The plea asked that the full court of 34 judges rehear the suit filed by Save the Bay Inc. against the Army Corps of Engineers, Col. Drake Wilson and E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., Inc.

A three-judge panel has ruled against Save the Bay. The same panel refused the en banc hearing plea, saying the judges were not polled on the request because no member of the panel nor any judge in regular active service on the circuit asked for a poll.

Save the Bay contended that the Corps deliberately avoided a requirement that it make an environmental impact study before granting a permit necessary for construction of DuPont's $150 million chemical plant at DeLisle on the Bay of St. Louis.

Rape hearing set Mar. 28

By RICH ADAMS

A preliminary hearing for a Lafayette, La. man charged with rape last week is scheduled for March 27 at 7 p.m. before District One Justice Court Judge Lyle Klein, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson.

William W. Perkins Jr., 35, Lafayette, La., was released from Hancock County Jail Wednesday on a $10,000 bond after he allegedly raped a 17-year-old girl in an isolated area in Lakeshore Friday, Peterson reported.

The sheriff said Perkins allegedly met the girl, a New Orleans resident, during a party at Buccaneer State Park near Waveland Friday afternoon.

The pair left the party and drove to an isolated section of Lakeshore where the alleged rape occurred, Peterson added. The incident is being investigated by Investigator Alvin Ladner and Deputies Fairley Nacaise and Mary Beth Iwanczyk.

reassessment firms will probably add 30 to 50 percent to their costs if the county waits until after the court orders reassessment.

Huckaby called the 1983 deadline "unrealistic," adding not many counties in the state will be able to meet the deadline.

Gex stressed the need for legislative assistance in paying for the reassessment.

"We are faced with a situation in which a potential 20 to 30 percent cut in revenue sharing is possible. We are going to be requested to come up with $2 million in new money for this, and unless the legislature rallies behind the counties, what is going to stop the counties from sitting back and saying sue me. We don't have a machine on which to print our own money," Gex said.

Wingo said the project could be completed in a "piecemeal" fashion, and suggested the supervisors check with the Agricultural Soil Conservation Service (ASCS) to find out if any aerial photography has been completed in Hancock County this year.

The tax expert said aerial photography may be used in mapping in rural areas, but said such use in the city is not effective.

Huckaby explained that three counties in the state recently completed reassessment and two others are in the process of reevaluating property.

Krishna farm denied tax break

By RICH ADAMS

The schoolmaster of the New Talavan Hare Krishna community in Hancock County said Tuesday a board of supervisors' decision this week denying the religious farming community total tax exemption is "irrational and unreasonable."

The supervisors Monday rejected a request by the International Society of Krishna Consciousness for ad valorem tax exemption on 607 acres of land at the Hare Krishna farm in Hancock County.

The rejection came following a "15 minute recess" during which the board left its meeting room and met in private for 40 minutes in the adjacent courtroom.

District Five Supervisor James Travira said the secret conference was to "discuss legal matters."

Darrell J. Martin, a Krishna devotee who serves as schoolmaster at the New Talavan community, said Tuesday he is "sorry the supervisors decided not to grant the exemption" and added he has not decided whether to appeal the supervisors' decision in Circuit Court.

The Krishna spokesman had told the board at a special hearing May 20, 1979 that all 607 acres of land at the farm near the Pearl River County border are used for educational purposes.

In the past the board has allowed a tax break on only 10 acres of the farm which are used directly for elementary education of children on the farm.

Tuesday the supervisors took action on the long-delayed decision by turning down the request for total exemption and continuing the 10 acre exemption as in the past.

Ocean Springs Attorney Earl Denham, who represented the Krishna community during the hearings last Spring, said "the board is acting unreasonably and irrationally as the (Hare Krishnas) just want to get along with the people of Hancock County."

"We were aware the board had a meeting Monday and also aware they were considering the matter," Denham said Tuesday.

"It is an interesting decision, and I don't know what my client will do about the decision," he added.

"The board has caused a lot of harassment to the Hare Krishna community," Denham said.

Following the "recess" Monday during which the supervisors may have discussed the Hare Krishna issue, Board Attorney Walter Gex III told the board that action is due on the matter.

District One Supervisor Burt Courge moved to grant the community the same 10 acre exemption as in the past, which was seconded by Travira and approved unanimously by the supervisors.

Supervisors grudgingly ok Louisiana soils test firm

By RICH ADAMS

A Louisiana soil analysis firm was reluctantly hired Monday by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to conduct soil borings for a proposed bulkhead at Bayou Cadet Marina.

Although most of the supervisors expressed reluctance to hire an out-of-state firm to do the job, only District One Supervisor Burt Courge voted against the measure during a roll call vote.

The soil borings are the first step in construction of the 80-foot-long bulkhead which is necessary for construction of an icehouse at the marina.

Port and Harbor Executive Director Wilson W. Webre told the supervisors the data needed is "engineering soil data, not soil analysis," adding no Mississippi firm is capable of making the borings.

Courge asked why no local firm is capable of making the soil tests, particularly a Gulfport soils analysis laboratory.

"No local lab is proficient in soils engineering data. Others in Louisiana are more proficient," Webre replied.

"For the record, I object to hiring an out-of-state soils analysis firm for this project in the county," Courge stated.

District Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner also voiced opposition, but added he was going with the Louisiana firm "to prevent delay in the icehouse project."

"I agree with Burt. In the future I would like to see local firms used," Ladner said.

District Five Supervisor James Travira seconded Ladner's motion to hire the Louisiana firm, but added, "I agree we should keep the jobs for local firms."

District Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro concurred that he is against hiring an out-of-state analysis laboratory, but said he would support the motion "to keep from holding things up."

The vote was 4-1 in favor of hiring the firm recommended by Fromhertz Engineering of New Orleans, with Courge voting against the issue.

Also at Monday's meeting, Hancock County Park Commission Secretary and Member Mary Callier said she will blockade a public road leading to the water at McLeod Park because of increasing vandalism at the park.

Callier and the supervisors were involved in a lengthy conversation over the legality of blocking the road, which leads to a cemetery near the park and continues to the shores of the Jourdan River.

Callier said a vandal recently entered the park from the river and slashed tires on a trailer located at the park.

She complained that people were driving down the road near the cemetery and entering the park without paying the one dollar entrance fee, adding she fears for park users because the road allows access to persons who are not registered at the ranger station at the entrance to the park.

Board President A.A. (Dolph) Keller said public hearings will be necessary if the road is to be closed.

"I am against a closing of the road. I will have no part of closing an access to the river and cemetery which has been used by three or four generations over the past 100 years," Keller said.

Board Attorney Walter Gex III said the road is maintained by the county and is a public road, emphasizing public hearings are necessary to close the road.

Callier also complained that users of the road have thrown litter on the sides of the unpaved artery, adding the litter has accumulated and the supervisors have done nothing to clean out the trash.

"I will have the board of health contact you," Callier said.

"I don't care what you say, I will still barricade the road," she added.

Graham dodging city's sewer repair requests

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Council expressed concern Tuesday night about the lack of response by Graham Construction Company, Escatawpa, to two letters, one written by Brown Engineers, Inc., and the other by Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett.

Joe Brown III told the Council the construction company had not picked up the letters from the post office as no return certification had as yet been received.

Graham was the contractor on the Bouslog Sewer Extension Project, and according to the engineers, a construction defect at the tie-in to the manhole at Victoria and Turner Streets is in need of repair.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex suggested hand delivery of a third letter to Graham from the mayor, a suggestion which the Council accepted and approved.

Gex also suggested the Council contact Sheriff Ronald Peterson and have him contact the Jackson County sheriff about the letter so he can have a deputy make a personal delivery.

The first letter was written by Brown February 15 and the second by Bennett March 4, in reference to the sewer problem-which in the meantime is getting worse, according to Bennett.

Copies of the letters are also to be sent to Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, the company which bonded Graham on the project.

Mayor Bennett asked, "Couldn't we declare the problem an emergency and repair the sewer hole problem and bill Graham?"

Council at the start of the meeting took under advisement contracts from three firms for the repair of cave-ins throughout the City and Council President Pete Benvenutti said the new letter would give the contractor until Monday, March 24 to act.

The Council is to receive recommendations on the bids at their meeting March 25 after the three bids are studied by Mayor Bennett, Lucien Ramond, engineer who is to check the repairs on behalf of the city; and Bill Johnson head of the Utilities Department.

In other actions, council accepted a bid from Hercules Tank and Irons Works for cleaning and painting interior of water tanks in the North Bay area and 400 blocks of Ballentine Street for the sum of $8,200 each.

Dr. Michael Smith, president of Advanced Developments Incorporated, recommended the Hercules bid.

Other bidder on the project was Utilities Services, Perry Ga., at $13,300 per tank.

When asked the reason for such a difference in bid prices, Dr. Smith said that Butler was already in town as they had the contract for the exterior of the water towers and men and equipment are readily available.

Dr. Smith also turned in a key valve report to the council on the gas system. Smith said the "as built" plans show 37 or 38 cutoffs but he was only able to find six of them.

The engineer suggested hiring someone who is an expert in gas systems as well as more strategic location of key valves.

"There is no way now of telling whether the lines connected to each other at intersections, if they are separate, and it is almost impossible to isolate an area in case of an emergency," Smith told the council.

Bennett received approval for Southern Cross to do a gas survey for another section of the city at a cost of $190 per day for about eight or ten days.

Councilman Harry Farve questioned City Clerk Kelly McQueen on whether monies are available to pay for the services.

McQueen said, "The City is probably losing as much as $50,000 per year or more through leaks, and any repairs done to the gas lines eventually ends up saving money."

Council authorized the reissuance of a check of James J. Chiniche as one authorized at their meeting two weeks ago was apparently lost.

Chiniche reported to the Council something could be done by the city to improve drainage problems in Spanish Acres.

Council President Benvenutti stated it will take an estimated $250,000 to completely correct the subdivisions drainage problems.

Engineer Brown commented that the 1978 Small Cities Project was 98 percent complete and should be finished by the end of March.

Council requested Bennett write a letter to Highway Commissioner Bob Joiner requesting a 'Bay St. Louis' sign be placed on I-10 before the junction of Highway 607.

McQueen and Ronnie Murray, Gulf Regional representatives, are to take an old zoning map and try and update the one designed by Gulf Regional for the city to have something to work with because the Clerk said there is a lot of confusion, which the Council agreed.

The minute books will be checked for changes according to McQueen.

Mayor Bennett did not make the request to the Council for the delay of the widening of Beach Boulevard as he stated he would do in a specially called news conference Tuesday, March 11.

At that time the Mayor said he would ask the Council at their "work shop" on Thursday of last week with no mention being made at the "official" meeting Tuesday.

Council recessed until Tuesday, March 25 at 6 p.m. when Barbey Engineers will present recommendations on utility rates.

The Concerned Citizens as well as other interested utility users, because of continuous rate increases of utilities, have been requesting changes in the utility billing-rates.

Lack of individual independence contributes to national malaise

The present high prices for groceries may prove to be a blessing in disguise. WHY? Home grown foods under present conditions will surely save the owner much money, but more important, home grown foods are much better for him.

They are fresher. They are grown and put on the table without the coloring agents, chemical preservatives, additives and adulterations found in most foods today.

Because home grown foods are fresher and can be used the day they are harvested, they are vitamin loaded. Vegetables lose their vitamin value fast unless used at once.

The old timers knew the value of fresh food though they may never have heard of vitamins. My mother would not serve vegetables on her table unless pulled fresh from the garden on the morning they were cooked. She would not cook vegetables that were the least bit wilted.

Home grown foods save money not only because they cost less but they are so much more healthful that they save on doctor and drug bills.

Another reason the high food prices may be a blessing in disguise is that people will again learn the almost lost art of producing their own food. All older people had the skills for growing home gardens where now the great majority have lost this valuable knowledge.

The only way most people now know how to get groceries is to go to the supermarket. In the old days they had to grow 'em or they didn't have 'em.

Sixty years ago, and longer, this country was wholly self-sufficient in most respects. We supplied our own needs in energy, in food and in just about every other way.

We did not depend on any foreign country or anyone else for any of our vital supplies. When a nation, or a person, becomes too dependent on any one else - so dependent that blackmail or threats can be resorted to as is the case right now with the mounting energy crisis - that nation or person is in grave danger, even danger from starvation in case of prolonged tie-ups from strikes, or in case of a breakdown in our economy or in case of destruction of our transportation arteries and power systems from subversive or enemy action.

While it may seem unlikely that we'll face emergencies such as these, unsettled world conditions today may evenuate in great changes to our disadvantage.

The people of this country have to a big extent - more than most of us realize - lost their independence.

We are dependent on too many others.

In the old days people fed themselves. They grew and produced what they ate. A very small percentage of foods came from stores back when I was a boy.

Most people in those days lived on farms. They could have lived well if there had been no stores.

Most of those who lived in towns had vegetable gardens, 150 years ago came into this area where we live.

I married in 1917. For several years thereafter we had a milk cow in our back yard and a few laying hens. We also had a vegetable garden.

Though we had only two lots, we grew a fine garden for a number of years. We grew and produced a good part of food on that small area. Today, too many foods are processed to make money and are doctored with non-food elements to keep them from spoiling.

Even the White House in Washington had a vegetable garden and milk cows in the early days of this country.

When in day past we were a truly independent nation, made up of an independent citizenry, it would have been impossible for Arabian sheiks or anyone else to blackmail us as a nation or as independent people.

Why did not our leadership, on whom we have depended, see the coming of the energy crisis and take steps to keep our nation self-sufficient?

Why were not the oil people encouraged to develop more oil fields and other energy sources in this nation instead of so heavily investing in far-off Asia?

Such neglect of our future well being by big government and big corporations is inexcusable.

Let us not forget our heroic past. Men and women 125 to 150 years ago came into this area where we live.

They staked claims, built log houses, cleared the land and grew their food and other sustenance.

There were no stores such as we know them now. These pioneers grew what they ate, and ate what they grew.

They lived outdoor lives.

They got plenty exercise. They were not cooped up in heated buildings.

They breathed only clean, pure, fresh air. In other words they lived as God intended.

There were few hospitals - they were not needed.

Another thing, the thrifty farm folk of 60 years ago did not think much of a man who did not raise his own food.

If one wanted to say something bad about another, he might have said "He eats out of paper bags" or "He doesn't even produce his own meat."

They talk about how the life expectancy has increased.

It has, but the increase comes from the so much better care of babies. Those who reach middle age now live no longer than men did years ago, and in spite of the fact that those now living have a multitude of medicines, drugs, modern hospitals, and thoroughly trained doctors.

The old timers did not have any of this expert help yet lived as long as the modern man.

Looking back now from our time of almost every conceivable luxury, and life of ease, one must wonder how the old timers got along so well, why so many of them lived to ripe old ages.

What is the secret of the old timers getting along so well? I think I know this secret. They were independent. They depended only on themselves.

They had not learned to look to the government or anyone other than themselves.

They made their own way, they took care of themselves in every sense of the word. There were no government agencies of any kind to help or hinder them.

I believe that the solution of the energy crisis is for the government to gradually get completely out of it and to encourage more development of energy resources by removing restrictions so that the oil companies can compete with one another as in the old days.

I believe that private enterprise with minimum of government regulations and restrictions would much sooner bring energy prices down than will a whole library full of government regulations and an army of bureaucrats with attendant inflation.

Government control almost surely means more inflation, interference, inefficiency, favoritism, eventually much higher costs and in the end much greater scarcities.

More individual initiative, and less and less government meddling and muddling is our only hope for a solution to our problems.

I realize we cannot grow all our foods as in the old days, but we, all of us, even those in town, can do much to take care of ourselves in case of dire need.

Such a condition of dire need does not seem likely now but with the unsettled conditions in this country and in the world, who knows?

Jackson County schools see 16th Section returns

Terrell Randolph, former Hancock County superintendent of education, has secured the first productive lease of 16th Section lands in Jackson County in more than two years.

The Jackson County Board of Education secured its first lease on a parcel of 16th Section school land in more than two years Monday night when it approved an application for a 25-year lease on slightly more than an acre to operate a business at an annual rental of $375.

The land, which was leased to Warren and Johnnie Fountain, had been appraised at $3,750 and was the first lease secured under the 16th Section land reform act passed by the Mississippi Legislature in 1978.

The district has received no income in more than two years from the lands that were set aside in 1975 to benefit school children.

The lease was presented by Randolph, who was hired by the board to manage its 16th Section land last month.

"Sixteenth section land prospects look good," Randolph said, adding that he said he would present a report on additional leases at the April 8 board meeting.

"We are in the process of renegotiating expired leases," said Superintendent of Education Jimmy Smithie, "We are very pleased with the progress."

The 16th Section land system, previously handled by the board of supervisors, had been a political plum under the old system.

In some instances, lands were leased for $1 a year in Jackson County. There were no records of payments having been made on some local leases.

Under the 1978 revisions, the school board handles the leasing of the school lands. They are leased at a percentage of the fair market value.

Lands are classified into eight categories and leases may not exceed a maximum of 25 years instead of the 99-year limit under the old system.

The school board adopted an order terminating leases that were delinquent in rent payments in October, 1977.

Then, it hired an appraiser to determine the value of the land. The board had been stymied in its efforts to generate revenue from the lands under the previous administration.

Randolph was hired less than a month after Smithie took office.

Baxter brothers to participate in Bataan-Corregidor anniversary

We placed a large sign on the roof of the prison saying "American P.O.W.'s," and American planes saw the sign," Baxter said.

"Cmdr. Harold Stassen, later governor of Minnesota and presidential hopeful, returned to a nearby Jap air field. He and several of his crew were able to find a Japanese Army vehicle and drive to our prison and told us he would return to his ship and send us supplies," Baxter continued.

"The very next morning big transport planes came in low and dropped food, medical supplies and clothing within the compound. The planes flying so low, some times the parachutes on the boxes would not open and it got to be a dangerous operation. The planes then started to drop outside the camp and we had competition with the Japanese on reaching the supplies," Baxter added.

When asked what the guards at the prison did when they heard the war was over, Baxter replied, "They started to protect us from people outside of the prison because the two atomic bombs had angered the civilian population of Japan and they were afraid the people would turn on us."

"Cmdr. Stassen warned the Americans not to leave the compound until our forces would come in and get us out," he added.

The Fall of Bataan
The 1942 news of the fall of Bataan was heard as a "rumor." Official news from the Voice of Freedom on Corregidor that the last line of resistance on Bataan had collapsed was heard by Baxter and his comrades on April 9.

"Amid a state of bewilderment and shock many American soldiers were attempting to make it to the beaches in a desperate move to escape. At 10 a.m. that morning we were ordered to discard and destroy all weapons and ammunition," Baxter said of the fall of Bataan.

He then continued, "We were told to tie white bands around our arms for units of the Japanese Army were already approaching the area. The American officer also told us that each soldier was not duty bound to those orders, but must accept or reject the orders as now each Filipino and American soldier must be the ruler of his own fate."

"Shortly after the briefing a Japanese Zero flew in just over the tree tops and started staffing the troops in addition to bombing a hospital where casualties were very high."

Take no Prisoners
"Filipino soldiers were drifting into the jungles. An officer of the Philippine army told us he had listened to the latest news communique from Manila radio, which stated that every soldier that fought against the Imperial Japanese army on Bataan should be wiped out whether he surrendered or not."

The directive also stated that every American soldier taken prisoner who is wounded or sick and unable to march all the way to the concentration camps would be put to death in the area off the highway. And that is exactly what I witnessed the days I was with the prisoners during the ninety-odd miles of the Bataan Death March J. C. continued.

Baxter reports that he first headed for the hills before he was captured and searched the camp for food but was unable to find any.

In his duffle bag he had two cans of sardines and a small bag of unhusked native rice and some dried prunes.

Lost in the Jungle
"I was determined not to be captured by the Japanese and I dreamed of finding a native village far into the mountains. After studying a Bataan field map with the marked compass reading, I was completely lost in the dense foliage and I crossed a caraba trail which led to a small clearing," Baxter said, adding this was the day of Bataan's fall.

"In the clearing and fearing further penetration into the dense jungles as it was now night, I fell upon the ground and slept to be awakened the next morning by the noise of trucks, tanks, and the occasional firing of weapons. I was only a few hundred yards off the Main Balanga Highway. It was evident to me that my escape was futile at this time as I suspected Jap patrols were flanking the highway on both sides, and felt I had to make a quick decision," Baxter stated.

The Bay St. Louis native now figured he had only one choice and that was to try and sneak undetected into the ranks of Philippine prisoners who were guarded in the front and back by the Japs.

"As I worked slowly to the road, driven by uncontrollable fear, I began to panic and in utter desperation, ran into the formation of Philippine prisoners, miraculously undetected by the guards," Baxter said.

"As they marched through the day, wounded and sick prisoners unable to continue were either shot or bayoneted. Prisoners would be hit with rifle butts and even stuck with bayonets of the guards," he continued.

Baxter remembered the only time they would get a brief rest would be when a formation of trucks would would lower their fire and kill us all."

"Later during the night we heard other troops guarding more prisoners passing but they were not allowed to stop by us. I still had my two cans of sardines and prunes tucked into my shirt and felt that night would be a good time to eat them to get my strength back."

Attempts Escape
"The Japanese guards took refuge in the trucks and I was not far from the bamboo thickets. Not capable of thinking of the consequence, daring all the odds I began crawling on the flat of my belly by foot towards the jungle. Periodically the Jap guard would pass a spot light over us and I would freeze in the mud and water."

"It seemed like an eternity, but I was now swallowed up in the jungle and beyond the point of no return," Baxter recalled.
Baxter said he finally was able to join up with a very unorganized resistance guerrilla force, mostly Filipinos. This force, he said, were really fighting for their lives and trying to reach the better organized forces to fight the Japanese.

While Baxter was on a reconnaissance and supply mission some time in June, 1942, on the outskirts of the small barrio of Victoria, he and a Sgt. DeVillero and two Filipino scouts were captured by the Japanese in a rice field.

Suffers bayonet wound
Baxter well remembers, "When I was recognized as an American soldier, the Japanese soldier plunged his bayonet through the calf of my left leg causing me to collapse to the ground. He then struck me across the back several times with the barrel of a rifle."

"We were placed with ropes around our necks - in case one would fall, the rope would choke the others - and marched several miles to Victoria north of Manila and placed on a truck to San Fernando.

While in the dungeon Baxter recalls the rats skirmishing across their bodies, the fear of sleep because rats would gnaw at their clothing.

He said they had water turned on only once every 24 hours and the size of the cell was 20 feet by 20 feet with 20

SPECIAL INVITATION-Joseph Clay (J.C.) Baxter received this invitation in 1946 from the late General Jonathan M. Wainwright. Baxter remembers the Americans blowing up the bridges at Calumpit on verbal orders given by General Wainwright to Colonel Pat Casey. W.A. (Fred) Curet, of Bay St. Louis, Baxter and a Lloyd Willogby of New Orleans attended this gathering. Willogby was a Marine who Curet and Baxter met at Cabanatuan prison.

From there we were placed on a train for Manila destined for the Fort Santiago Dungeons. Journey brings memories

On the trip to Fort Santiago, Baxter remembered the Calumpit Bridge crossing which was held until the last minute so the retreating U.S. Army commanded by General Jonathan M. Wainwright could escape to the Bataan peninsula.

"These bridges were blown only hours before I arrived with one of the last truck convoys of medical supplies from the U. S. Army warehouses in Manila on the night of January 1, 1942. The bridges were blown at 6:15 a.m. on verbal orders from General Wainwright to Colonel Pat Casey on New Years Day," Baxter recalled, so we destroyed the medical supplies."

The American prisoner said he spent the next two days at a Jap supply depot near Calumpit, where he was interrogated for many hours and caged in a barbed wire enclosure and given no food.

"Sunday morning we were loaded up on trucks, still with the ropes around our necks, and a lot of Jap guards who jabbed us with bayonets causing us to jerk and the slip knots around our necks to choke us."

"At the outskirts of Manila we passed the old turtle back bridge and guard post at the main entrance to Nichols Field. It brought back the memories of the adventurous and carefree days before December 7, 1941."

"Actually, it was December 8 in the islands when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor because they are west of the international date line," Baxter remembers.

He continued, "We were ushered off the trucks on Dewey Boulevard and had signs placed on our backs in Tagalog and Spanish saying we were captured guerrillas. We were then tied to the bumper of a truck and paraded up the boulevard and across the Pasig river."

"When we reached Luneta Park, we were untied from the truck and marched through the old wall gate into Intramuros, 'The Walled City,' Fort Santiago," Baxter said. The dungeons were completed by the Spanish in the 16th Century and were under a 45-foot thick wall, 20 feet high with a lower passage way that ran parallel to the cells and an outside moat.

Witness Beheadings
"The cells were dark - we prisoners and a total of only eight ounces rice for breakfast and supper, and total darkness.

Baxter thinks about the real tortures after several days in the dungeons when he was called out and given a number of 382, which would be his identification for the next 35 years.

"The guard dragged me up some stone steps to a small table behind which a Japanese officer sat."

"He questioned me as to why had I not surrendered with my unit on Bataan and told me I was captured as a guerrilla, and now I would be executed afterwards telling me I was a coward and disgrace to my country. As a soldier all I would do is give my name, rank and serial number," he said.

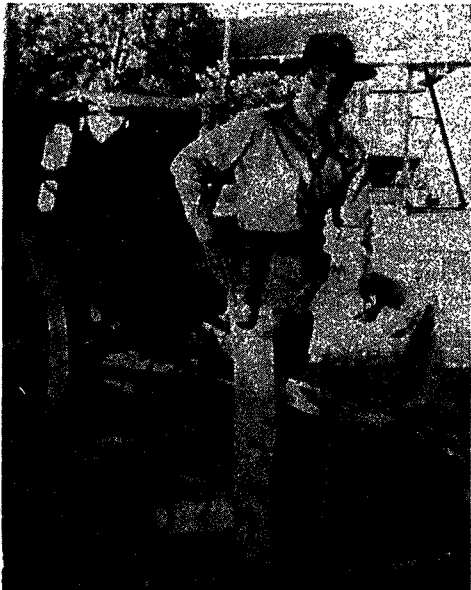

Eye Burned
"The Japanese officer jumped to his feet, and slapped me across the face. Two guards held my head back while the officer jammed a lighted cigarette into my left eye, rolling the cigarette around until it fell into pieces. The excruciating pain forced me to my feet and I broke free for a moment only to be beaten and kicked into unconsciousness. When I awoke I was in a solitary dungeon cell."

"This cell still had the iron ring in the wall with chains and leg clamps that were used years ago by the Spaniards on the resurgent Filipinos. I lost all count of time and was unable to sit up - my whole body was racked with pain."

ONLY MOMENTOS-This cross, a Sacred Heart Apostleship of prayer scapular, were purchased by J.C. Baxter on a visit to Manila prior to the attack of Pearl Harbor while stationed at Nichols Field. Those two items were carried continuously by him throughout his 3.5 years of captivity. A Japanese POW photo and POW ID card are the only items in addition to the cross and scapular brought back by Baxter as momentos of the War.

pass and needed the width of the road.

The soldiers on the trucks passing would try to hit the prisoners with rifle butts and he said he saw several of them run over by the passing truck and tanks and if they were not dead they would be dragged to the side of the road and finished off by the Japanese.

The First Night
Baxter recalls how on the first night after he joined the column of prisoners, at about dark the guards held up the column and made all the prisoners sit down in an area flanked by thickets of bamboo. Some distance from the foot hills were the enticing and forbidden jungles.

Baxter remembers, "Two trucks were backed in blocking the entrance to the small barrio where they were sitting and the tail gates were dropped. Occasionally the two machine guns mounted on the trucks each manned by two Jap soldiers would be fired just over our heads and we feared at any moment they

"I could hear the cell doors of other prisoners opening and closing as they were dragged to interrogation rooms and screams of torture echoed from cell to cell.

"The Japanese were fiendish in their efforts to break prisoners mentally and physically by torture, mortal terror and deprivation," Baxter recalls.

The officers who questioned the prisoners asked the same questions repeatedly. Some of the prisoners were given the "bamboo treatment," according to Baxter.

The Japanese would shove splinters of bamboo between the fingers and toes and their nails.

Other tortures used by the captors are far too gruesome to place in print, as recalled by Baxter.

Bay resident Baxter never thought he would ever see his homeland again as the days of agony went on.

He was moved from Fort Santiago to Bilbid Prison Camp in Manila for about one month. From there he was placed in a slave camp at Cavanatuan, Tarlac, Providence, Philippines Island, Luzon for almost one year.

Moved to Japan

In early August 1943, Baxter and 359 other American prisoners were placed aboard a freighter called Ooka Maru. The prisoners were all placed in the hole and were so crowded that they slept with their arms and legs across the bodies of their comrades.

A two-month journey saw burials at sea each day, according to Baxter. When they reached Rincón prison only 281 were counted.

In the islands the temperature had been very warm, the ex POW remembers and when they had reached Osaka, Japan the men were forced in groups of 50 to move to the top of the freighter and given soap and salt water to bathe after stripping. It was so cold there was ice on the decks.

Baxter well remembers when they marched to shore

and were told after being welcomed by a Japanese Japanese officer, the officer, "We were not soldiers, prisoners were marched to for we had disgraced our Rinco Prison at Niigata, country and uniform by surrendering; that a Japanese soldier would never surrender, but would fight to the death for his Emperor."

"You shall never see your home or loved ones again. Any prisoner who tries to escape will be put to death. Any prisoner found slack in his work will be put to death, and any prisoner that does not salute a Japanese officer or soldier will be severely punished," he allowed.

American Beheaded
All the prisoners witnessed one day when the post commandant took his Samurai sword and beheaded an American prisoner. Again Baxter remembers many instances of brutality which are too gruesome to print.

The only time the prison guards let up a bit on the American, British and Dutch prisoners who were captured at Singapore was late in the summer of 1945 when American B-29's became visible to the prisoners and a little light of hope filled the prisoners.

After the raid by the B-29's Baxter said they were given the privilege to take a bath, the first time in over two years.

When the prisoners were released by the Americans and placed on trains for the trip to Tokyo, they could hardly believe the damage which had been dealt to the country.

From Tokyo the Americans were flown to Okinawa to a field hospital.

Baxter then said he made another trip to a hospital in Manila of the Philippines, then a hospital in San Francisco from there to a hospital in Pennsylvania for his burned eye from which today he can only distinguish day from night.

In Conclusion
Baxter urges that this 'brief chapter' about the Fall of Bataan and my escape, is not to be accepted as 100 percent accurate.

"For the inevitable ages of time dim the possibility of such. It does however depict the course of events, times, and places as I lived them. For all these memories are vivid and indelibly etched in the deep recesses of my being. It is not a story of heroism or bravery and not intended as such; but rather a 'classic' of will power, fear, and self determination for survival," J.C. Baxter stated.

"Those latter days on Bataan were nightmares of 'hell and damnation.' To the men that survived the long battle, they faced a far worse struggle on the relentless 'Death March' that followed. It is recorded that on this march some 20,000 Filipino and American soldiers died from the calloused and inhuman treatment they suffered at the hands of an enemy devoid of all compassion and mercy."

"Of the 23,700 American troops captured on Bataan and one month later on 'besieged Corregidor, over 13,000 died in Japanese prison camps in the Philippine Islands, Japan, and the far reaches of Manchuria from brutality, starvation, and diseases," he concluded, offering this song of that day:

THE BALLAD OF BATAAN

"They were the battling bastards of Bataan.
No Mama. No Papa. No Uncle Sam.
No Aunts. No Uncles. No Nephews. No Nieces.
NO RIFLES. NO PLANES. OR ARTILLERY PIECES.
And Nobody. Nobody. Gives A God-Damn."

In June of 1946, Baxter was honorably discharged from the United States Army. He had a brother Herman Baxter, who was killed in action on Oct. 16, 1944 in Freinberg, Germany.

Herman Baxter was president of the student body at Ole Miss, according to Lionel Baxter, and "Baxter Hall" on the campus is named in his honor.

Another brother, John W. Baxter, also graduated from Bay High School like J.C. and Herman. Lionel, a little older than his three brothers, graduated from high school in Birmingham, Ala.

Lionel said his father purchased the Weston Hotel in 1934 in Bay St. Louis, but he had already finished high school and stayed in Alabama.

The Baxter family has for years lived in Hancock

New state museum in Jackson

Museum foundation seeks funds to complete 39-acre facility

Progress on a 32,000 square foot exhibition building, the initial construction phase of the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum on Lakeland Drive in Jackson, is on schedule and a completion date is targeted for this fall, according to Bruce Hartfield, director of the Museum Division of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

Funded by an appropriation of $1.5 million by the 1978

Mississippi legislature, the building will house reception and orientation areas as well as numerous exhibits depicting the rural history of the magnolia state.

More financing is being sought through a statewide fund-raising campaign, conducted by the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum Foundation, to complete the facility which will cover 39 acres on I-55 at Lakeland Drive donated by the City of Jackson.

"When the museum is completed, visitors touring the facility will be able to step into time periods dating back to the state's prehistory, then move progressively through its stages of rural development up to the present," Hartfield said.

An additional $1.5 million are needed to complete the large facility which will provide many entertaining, as well as educational displays.

"While many exhibits will feature displays of numerous artifacts, others will use techniques similar to those which have made attractions like Disney World and Six Flags Over Texas so popular," Hartfield explained.

"The history of our state's progress in agriculture and forestry is truly an exciting story and exhibits such as the ones we are planning will make a visit to the museum an exciting and very worthwhile experience," he said.

The museum fund-raising campaign is gaining momentum, Hartfield said, and a majority of counties have formed local committees to assist in the effort, while others are in the process of organizing.

He stated that many persons, statewide, have already sent their contributions, and some of them have pledged more during the next few years.

Contributions may be made in honor of individuals, families, or other groups designated by the donor. "We are finding that Mississippians all over the state are proud of the rural heritage handed down by their forefathers. The museum offers them the opportunity to preserve that heritage for their children and future generations," Hartfield reported.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the museum project may contact any of the local workers or mail it to: Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum Foundation, P.O. Box 1609, Jackson, Miss. 39205.

All monetary contributions are tax-deductible.

NEW MISSISSIPPI MUSEUM - The Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum takes shape as construction progresses on the exhibition building at a 39-acre site on Lakeland Drive near I-55 Jackson. The 32,000 square foot building was funded by an appropriation of 1.5 million dollars by the 1978 Mississippi legislature. A fund-raising campaign is underway to acquire another $1.5 million to complete the other phases of the project, including a pioneer farm layout, a rural life village, forest arboretum, and numerous displays.

Frank Henry of Bay St. Louis and Mike Necaise of Pass Christian are among students representing Gulf Coast Junior College's Perkinson Campus in the recent 1980 Technology Olympics who won three first place awards in team competition, seven contestants were named high scorers for individual performance.

Vying at the University of Southern Mississippi with junior colleges from throughout the state,

This was the fourth consecutive year for the college to win first place in architectural and machine drafting, both taught by Roney Walker.

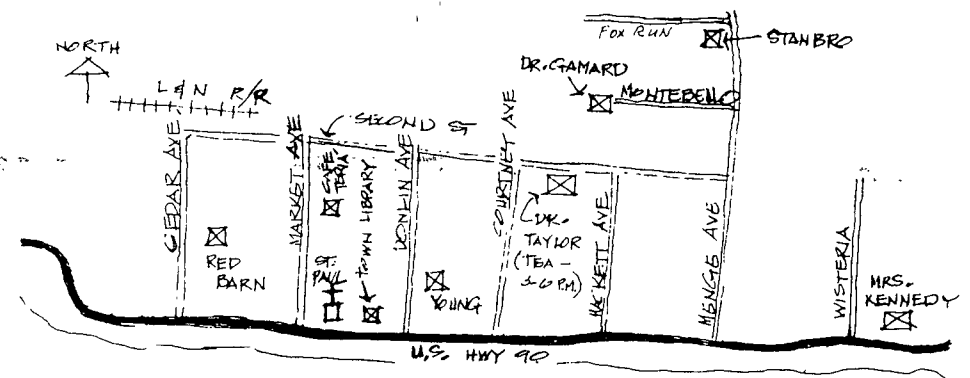

Members of the architectural team were Henry and Necaise of Pass Christian who were both scoring highest marks.

The machine drafting team was composed of Linda Tripplett of Saucier, who also was one of the high scoring contestants, and Joey Vogle also of Saucier, a second place winner.

Brownbuilder Doris Wigington is working for you in Mississippi

Doris Virginia Wigington, from Meridian, is a Mississippi Brownbuilder—one of the men and women of Brown & Root—working for you in Mississippi.

Doris joined Brown & Root on a major power plant construction project in 1976. She started as a millwright helper. She later worked as a welder helper and now uses both skills as a millwright-welder. She lives in Escatawpa, attends Bethel Assembly of God in Pascagoula and likes to go fishing in her spare time.

Mississippi Brownbuilders like Doris are working for you and thousands of your neighbors. They're helping to build the hardware, such as oil fields and power plants, which will help insure Mississippi's future growth and prosperity.

Because of Brown & Root's policy of hiring locally first, most of our Brownbuilders here are Mississippi natives or longtime residents. Many of them first joined Brown & Root at project personnel offices near their homes.

Brown & Root hires and promotes solely on the basis of individual ability and merit. Anyone willing and qualified is eligible to work. That way, local communities, counties and the state get maximum benefit from projects on which we work—hundreds of thousands of dollars in payrolls, purchases, savings and taxes.

Mississippi Brownbuilders and Brown & Root—working for you in Mississippi.

Tour of Homes in Pass Christian Sunday

adapted to Gulf Coast living with cross ventilation and a southeast exposure. Inside the home exposed hand-hewn cyprus post and beam timbers and tidewater cyprus flooring are accented by antique, unpolished brass chandeliers and many other antiques.

A new southern colonial home of Mr. and Mrs. N. Lee Stanbro, 1 Fox Run, will also be part of the afternoon tour.

The home features a mahogany staircase designed by local artist Peter McCarthy and blends old-style, fine carpentry with all of the modern conveniences.

Bayou Oaks is a 20-acre farm on Bayou Portage, just off Montebello Road, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Edward Garmard Jr. and is the fifth home on the Sunday tour.

The original farm home was built in 1849 has had several additions over the years and houses numerous antiques.

Tea will be served 3-5 p.m. at the 722 East Second St. home of Dr. and Mrs. C.D. Taylor and is the last home on the Pass Christian tour.

This neo-classical home was designed by Goldstein Architects of New Orleans in 1921 for William B. Burkenroad Sr. who originally built the home on the beach front.

The Taylors moved the home to its present location in 1964 and features a porte-cochere and a glass enclosed solarium.

The fee for the tour and the tea is $3. Lunch at St. Paul's will be $4 for adults and $2 children.

Proceeds will be for the benefit of St. Paul's Catholic Church.

Tickets may be purchased from the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce office at the harbor.

High school writers to meet at Ole Miss

Julie Barrett of Bay St. Louis High School is southern district representative for Mississippi Scholastic Press Institute and will be among newspaper and yearbook staff members and advisers from high schools and junior colleges throughout the state who will attend the 34th annual Mississippi Scholastic Press Institute at The University of Mississippi on March 28.

The institute is designed to give student newspaper and yearbook staff members suggestions for improving their publications, according to the university.

Pat Clark, director of publications and a journalism teacher at Griffith High School, Griffith, Ind., will lead two sessions on yearbooks—one for students and one for advisers. The Griffith yearbook has been cited as one of the top five in the nation four times during Ms. Clark's tenure at the school.

Clark has spoken to more than 50 journalism Education groups in the past five years including major addresses before the Journalism Education Association, National Scholastic Press Association and Columbia Scholastic Press Association. She serves as a judge for three national scholastic press associations, numerous regional groups and the Indiana state contest.

Jane Tenehill, managing editor of The Appeal, Union, and president of Mississippi Press Women, will speak on "Meeting Challenges" at the noon advisers' luncheon.

Members of the Ole Miss journalism and law faculty and professional journalists from Mississippi and Tennessee will take part in panel discussions on feature writing, sports writing, news writing, broadcast production, legal and ethical responsibilities, editorial writing, photography and layout and design.

Ole Miss Lady Rebels Basketball Coach Van Chancellor will be one of the sports writing panelists.

A highlight of the meeting will be the presentation of the Silver En Award, given annually to an outstanding journalist with a Mississippi background. Jack Nelson, chief of the Los Angeles Times Washington bureau, was last year's recipient.

Winners of the 1980 Mississippi Scholastic Press Association Newspaper Contest will be announced, and MSPA members will elect new officers.

MSPA 1979-80 officers are Mike Herrington, president, South Natchez-Adams High School; Rebecca Clarke, vice president, Petal High School; Paula Robertson, secretary, South Natchez-Adams High School; Brenda Robertson, treasurer, South Panola High School; Donald Ring, northern district representative, Aberdeen High School; and Julie Barrett, southern district representative, Bay St. Louis High School.

S. Gale Denley, Ole Miss

associate professor of journalism, is MSPA director.

The annual meeting is sponsored by The University of Mississippi Department of Journalism and is coordinated by the University's Division of Continuing Education. Hosts are members of the Ole Miss chapters of Women in Communications, Inc., Public Relations Student Society of America, and the Society of Professional Journalists-Sigma Delta Chi, and staff members of the Daily Mississippian.

Henry, Necaise high scorers in olympics

Students representing Gulf Coast Junior College's Perkins Campus in the recent 1980 Technology Olympics won three first place awards in team competition and seven contestants were named high scorers for individual performance.

Vying at the University of Southern Mississippi with junior colleges from throughout the state, Perkins placed first in architectural drafting, machine drafting and computational.

This was the fourth consecutive year for the college to win first place in architectural and machine drafting, both taught by Roney Walker. Members of the architectural team were Frank Henry of Bay St. Louis and Kevin Necaise of Pass Christian, both scoring high marks.

The machine drafting team was composed of Linda Triplet, of Saucier, who also was one of the high scoring contestants, and Joey Vogle also of Saucier, a second place winner.

Computational team members, all of whom won high scoring individual honors, were Ronnie Allums of Wiggins; John Prickett of Perkins; and Jack Stephens of McHenry. Their instructor is Larry O'Neal.

The surveying team from Perkins placed third. Members were Steve Bodin and Tommy Pisarch, both of Biloxi; and Robert Etherton of Ocean Springs.

Tips for landscaping with morning glories morning glories

No other flowering vine can excel morning glories for quickly screening and covering unsightly objects. "A vine can easily top a 20-foot pole but can be kept in bounds by pinching tip growth," says Jim Perry, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service horticulturist.

"You'd never guess from the array or color of morning glory vines that individual blossoms usually last only one day. They have only a few hours to complete pollination before they wilt, but a fresh new crop comes every morning," Perry adds.

A built-in clock opens the morning glories before dawn and it is still dark when the spiral-wrapped flower buds unfurl.

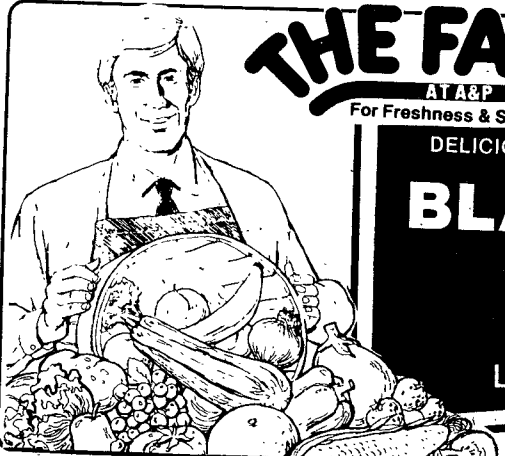

If the day dawns cloudy and gray, blossoms will remain open. On a sunny day, they will close by mid-morning.

The huge three to four-inch blossoms come in white, pink, rose, purple and blue.

"Nick seeds with a nail file before planting to speed up sprouting," Perry suggests.

FINAL TOUCH—Donna Harville, right, of Bay St. Louis, and manager of the Hair Port in Waveland styles Mrs. Muriel Brokmeier's hair. Mrs. Brokmeier is publicity chairman for the Hancock General Hospital Auxiliary which is sponsoring a spring and summer fashion show 11:30 a.m. March 28 in Virginia Hall behind Christ Episcopal Church. The Hair Port will provide all of the hairstyles for the Friday fashion show. (Staff photos by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Correction

In a previous edition, the Sea Coast Echo inadvertently quoted Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Director W. Wilson Webre as saying, "I don't think they (the supervisors) know the difference between a bulkhead and a pier... the existing Bayou Cadet structure is a pier!"

A tape recording of the meeting at which Webre was quoted, however, indicates the director stated people in general are unaware of the difference between a bulkhead and a pier, rather than singling out county supervisors in his statement.

The Echo apologizes for this error.

Charles Sciana Jr., Bay St.

Louis native and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sciana Sr. of Bay St. Louis, was inadvertently identified in a previous edition as son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sciana Sr. The Echo apologizes for this error.

In a previous edition, the Sea Coast Echo identified Waveland Fire Chief Kenneth Fayard as fire chief at National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

Kenneth Fayard is the brother of Richard Fayard former Bay St. Louis fire chief and current fire chief at NSTL.

The Echo apologizes for this error.

PRICES AND PACKAGING Modern merchandising depends more on packaging to protect value image than one might realize.

Soaring gasoline prices and inflation have generated considerable interest these days in prices per gallon, or jar, whatever unit of packaging. Yet a lot of consumers might change their buying habits if they took a closer look at net units of measurement.

Folks will be squawking loud in a few more weeks when gasoline prices react the $1.50 per gallon mark on the way to the predicted $2 per gallon anticipated by year's end. Yet we unthinkingly pay $3.78 per gallon today for our favorite soft drinks in coin operated refrigerators packaged in 12 ounce cans. Or worse, we pay $9.62 per gallon for deodorant, or $3.99 a pound for toothpaste.

No need to lay all blame on the manufacturer. He did not illegally deceive you. On the deodorant container it clearly tells you that you are paying $1.77 for two and one-half ounces. But perhaps where he outfoxed you was to keep the volume small, quite small, so the price wouldn't turn you away.

Take candy bars for instance. Notice how they've shrunk even as the prices climbed. In a few more decades nobody will be around who remembers the nickle soft drinks in bottles or the generous sized nickle candy bars.

America grew up on cheap food and a lot of other things. But today the cost of government, of labor, and diminishing supplies of natural resources in the face of increasing population have sharply altered our pricing system. And while some may think food prices are getting out of line these days, they remain the greatest bargain available to the consumer.

Other prices that might easily slip past you, due to smart merchandising techniques, include $16.77 for a gallon lemon-scented furniture polish, and insect repellent at $41.85 a gallon.

One way has suggested that you could shoot down the little beasts cheaper with a shotgun and he may be right.

The items in the wife's make-up kit don't come cheap but hubby doesn't complain.

After all, she's worth it—every scent. Yet her fingernail polish cost $46 a gallon—over thirty times the price of the best house paint. The stuff that takes it off costs more than $14 a gallon. A good skin moisturizer would set you both back $74.45 a gallon. Lipstick, however, might be considered a real steal at only $35.40 a pound.

How about mouthwash at $10.87 a gallon or liquid soap at $5.25?

But no need to pick on the wives. Husbands lather in the bath with soap at 75 cents a pound, shave with some $19.20-a-gallon instant lather, splash on zingy $112-a-gallon aftershave lotion before dressing their hair with a concoction that may start at $10.81 a pound if you are sort of old fashioned, or more if you spray it.

Increasingly the notions and gadgets departments in typical supermarkets have had a deceptive effect on grocery price attitudes that is hard to overcome, not only from the sense of economics. Wonder how many pairs of pantyhose have been hard-boiled and consumed by absent-minded, newspaper reading husbands when the little lady was out of the house? But at least the nests of pantyhose are displayed across the store from the poultry counter!

Little backlash obviously stems from the pricing of super glue that may be bought in three-gram tubes in the trade. Yet if it were sold in bulk it would cost $2,044.00 a gallon. The rationale no doubt is that the consumer is paying for the engineering genius that made the product possible.

It is a shame that a double standard of expectation prevents farmers from being paid more in line with their resourcefulness and achievement that remains without parallel in the modern world!

Acreage survey begins Mar. 21

Dick Knight, Statistician in Charge of the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, announces that the second Acreage Intentions Survey of 1980 will be conducted from March 21 through April 9, 1980. This survey is a follow-up to the Jan. 1 Intentions Survey.

This survey will indicate if farmers have made adjustments in their plans for the 1980 crop year. The results of this survey will give each farmer information on what changes have been made since the Jan. 1 Intentions Survey. With this information, farmers will have an opportunity to review earlier plans and revise, if necessary, any decisions on specific crop acreages they may want to plant in 1980.

The April Acreage questionnaire will be mailed to about 2,500 Mississippi farmers asking for their intended acreage data for 1980. Farmers receiving the questionnaire are urged to fill it out as completely as possible and return it promptly.

For the most accurate estimates possible of crop acreage to be planted in 1980, it is essential that all those receiving the questionnaire return it so that all areas of Mississippi will be properly represented in this survey.

Results of this survey will be released by the Crop Reporting Board in Washington, D.C., on April 17.

Coast Guard offers boating guide for handicapped

Physically handicapped people may be able to take a more active part in the sport of boating with a new safety and information guide prepared under a grant from the U.S. Coast Guard.

Entitled "Boating for the Handicapped: Guidelines for the Physically Handicapped," the book was written by Dr. Eugene Hedley of the Human Resources Center, who is himself a physically handicapped boater.

The guide deals largely with safety for the handicapped boater and lists the types of boating activities available to the disabled.

The book discusses personal flotation devices, emergency equipment and procedures to follow if a boat capsizes or a person falls overboard. Also covered are procedures for transferring disabled boaters to and from the dock and handling special equipment for individual needs.

One unique feature of the book is a section on boating safety written in braille for the blind.

Hedley said his book, designed to "increase recreational boating opportunities for the physically handicapped" and to provide basic guidance to rehabilitation and recreation professionals who counsel and teach handicapped persons.

Earlier Coast Guard grants permitted the center to research boating safety for the handicapped. This formed the basis for Hedley's book.

Rear Admiral, Bernie Thompson, chief of the Coast Guard's Office of Boating Safety, said the center's work "will help to ensure that the handicapped boater can enjoy the sport safely."

A bibliography of recommended reading, a list of recreational organizations for the handicapped and a summary of current legislation affecting handicapped boaters are also found in the guide.

Copies of Hedley's book are available by writing to the Human Resources Center, over a year ago from the Washington, D.C. area.

Nurses' group plans meeting March 20-21

The Mississippi Nurses' Association (MNA), the professional organization for registered nurses (RN's), will have a special meeting of the 1979 house of delegates to decide the MNA task force on entry levels into a nursing practice position paper, which calls for two levels of nursing practice in the State of Mississippi.

The special meeting will be held at the Coliseum Ramada Inn in Jackson, March 20-21.

The American Nurses' Association (ANA) adopted the position of two nursing level entries in 1965, a 2-year associate degree (technical nurse) and a 4-year baccalaureate degree (professional nurse).

Since 1965, 24 other state nurses' association's have taken various positions on the entry level issue.

Fran Hall Finch, executive director of MNA, has taken no stand on the ANA position on entry levels or the MNA task force position paper.

Other items to be addressed during the convention will be the restructuring of ANA and the election of 10 delegates to represent MNA at the June ANA national convention in Houston, Texas.

The MNA house of delegates will hear the task force position paper at 7:15 p.m. June 20 and will vote on this issue on June 21 at 8:45 A.M.

Registration is open to any interested person and will begin 3 p.m. March 20 and again 7 A.M. March 21.

Consumer advisor urges teenagers to shop for cosmetics carefully

MONEY TALKS
By NORINE BARNES
Area Consumer Management Specialist

Moisturizing cleansing creams to tinted nail polish remover, cosmetics and toiletries are important items in the American budget; particularly for teenagers, who spend more than $2 billion annually on beauty aids.

"For teenagers, money spent on cosmetics may be a significant part of their total spending, so they perhaps more than others need to shop carefully," says Josephine Swanson, extension associate in consumer economics and housing, New York State College of Human Ecology, Cornell.

Chemical analysis shows that cosmetics are similar in basic composition. Because of these similarities manufacturers rely heavily on advertising to make their products look different from others on the market. They often infer that the use of their product produces romance, excitement, and flawless beauty-things cosmetics alone cannot provide.

Shoppers must be aware of the implications of this kind of advertising and be able to look past it when comparing products.

A 1978 study of consumer skills and attitudes showed that 85 percent of the 17-year olds in a national sample knew that ads often try to imply large differences among products when only small ones exist. However, almost 30 percent of the teens were not aware that consumers pay for ads in product price and 35 percent didn't know that for some items, the cost of advertising is a greater part of the product price than the product ingredients and manufacturing costs.

There may be as much as a tenfold price difference in two almost identical products. This is true of toiletries and health products like soap and shampoo as well as of lipstick, make-up, and other beauty preparations.

Buyers can save money by comparing ingredient lists for products of the same type. By law, ingredients must be listed in order of predominance, and by comparing the lists on several labels, you may discover low-priced equivalents of expensive brand-name products.

There may, of course, be some differences in similar combinations: so, when possible, purchase small amounts of several products and compare quality at home.

Close reading of ingredient lists is the best way for consumers with sensitive skin to avoid products harmful to them. Since there is no federal regulation governing the use of the term "hypoallergenic" in advertising and labeling, buyers should not assume that products so labeled are less likely than others to cause allergic reactions.

If you pay close attention to ingredient lists, compare prices, and are wary of inflated advertising claims, you should be able to save money without sacrificing health or beauty.

New SS card requires six weeks processing

William Gladden, manager of the Gulfport social security district office, reports that approximately 70 percent of all applications for original or replacement social security cards must be returned to the sender.

The 1972 Social Security Amendments, explained Gladden, required people applying for a social security card to submit sufficient evidence to establish their age, true identity and U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status.

In addition, all persons over 18 were required to apply in person for an original card. In May 1978, the procedure was expanded to require that all persons applying for a duplicate card submit proof of their identity before a replacement card could be issued.

Beginning at that time, a person could no longer visit a social security office with their old social security card or stub and be issued a replacement card immediately.

Proof of identity had to be submitted and a computer verification of the social security number became necessary before a replacement card could be issued.

The Gulfport office handles 75-100 requests each day for original or replacement cards, Gladden added. Seventy percent of these must be returned as insufficient evidence is submitted to allow a card to be issued.

If an original card is being requested, it should be requested well in advance of the time it will be needed as it takes six weeks to process these requests.

A replacement card can take up to one week. Anyone who needs a replacement social security card because of a name change must present evidence showing both the old and new names.

A marriage certificate is usually sufficient in these requests. The best evidence of a person's age is a birth certificate or a church record of birth or baptism recorded before his or her fifth birthday, Gladden added.

Acceptable proofs of identity can include: driver's license, state identity card, voter's registration, school record, marriage record, work badge or building pass, U.S. Passport, baby's hospital wrist band, newspaper birth announcement, baby book, court order, welfare case record, clinic or doctor's record, day care or nursery school record, membership card, or any other document showing data such as a physical description, photograph or signature.

It is important that the original document be submitted as photocopies are not acceptable. The original document will be returned to the sender.

If none of these are available, the social security office may be able to suggest other evidence that can be submitted. A leaflet, "Applying for a Social Security Number," contains more information about applying for a number.

Free copies can be obtained at the Gulfport or Biloxi social security offices by dialing: Gulfport - 896-8106 or Biloxi - 374-3401.
